

Effective Community and Stakeholder Engagement

Columbia Basin Trust in collaboration with Fraser Basin Council Smart Planning for Communities has completed a research project based on Basin input and effective public engagement strategies used within and outside the region. The recommendations from that report are providing a foundation for considering program and tool development.

Creative Engagement Techniques:

One way to improve effectiveness of engagement is to consider a variety of techniques and pick the one that is right for your community and engagement goal.

Pecha Kucha:

Invite keen community members to create a presentation on an issue or their vision that is exactly 20 slides, each slide displayed for 20 seconds, (that's less than 7 minutes per presenter) and share it in a fun setting (i.e. pub, coffee shop). Jasper, AB used this strategy in their Integrated Community Sustainability Plan (ICSP): <http://jasperplan.wordpress.com/>

Design Charrette:

Designers or artist sketch ideas for the community design as they are generated by participants. Revelstoke hosted a Design Charrette as part of their Unified Design Bylaw: <http://www.cityofrevelstoke.com/charette.htm>

Kitchen Tables:

Volunteers host visioning meeting at their own kitchen tables, reaching out into their network. Prince George has used this strategy: www.mypg.ca

Task Force:

Recruit community leaders and volunteers to lead the project. Rossland had a large community task force in the creation of their Sustainability plan and now have a volunteer Sustainability Commission and task forces involved in implementation: www.visionstoaction.ca/

Online forum:

Engage citizens in an online forum with areas to share ideas. Bowen Island Ourselves is an active and lively example of an online forum: <http://bowegover.ning.com/>

Make up your own:

Williams Lake did an activity based on the Amazing Race called the Great Adventure: <http://www.imagineourfuture.ca/>

Golden did engagement for their Official Community Plan in places where people are likely to be or come to: public skate, jam night, grocery stores, seniors centre and more: <http://www.smartgrowth.bc.ca/Default.aspx?tabid=122>

Smart Practices:

Learn from the experience of communities and organizations that have effectively done public engagement.

1. Use active citizens to lead the process
2. Go to the people
3. Use targeted approaches to reach demographics
4. Make partnerships with key community leaders
5. Use a creative technique for a public meeting
6. Create a fun public event
7. Showcase your plan visually and experientially
8. Use a new medium
9. Provide incentives to attend
10. Let the community know how their input was used
11. Realise that It takes more time than you think it will
12. Resist the urge to invite the entire community to every event
13. Communication between all involved (including decision makers) is key
14. Don't take everything on at once—Prioritize with the stakeholders, volunteers, staff and officials.
